You don't have to be a biblical scholar, pastor or leader. It is a tool that will help you analyze the scripture passage to better understand what God is telling his people (you!). Homiletics is also an effective tool for helping those who teach to create a message that applies to the Word of God audience. Here's a quick summary of how to make homiletics like taught at BSF. Pray! Always start by asking God to direct your research so that you can learn from His word. Read! Read the excerpt. Some people do their BSF lesson first; others make homiletics in the first place. It's your choice. Meditate! Think about what God tells you across the aisle. It's not a race. It's a conversation between God and you. Content list! Reduce reading and meditation to 12 to 15 summary suggestions. No matter looking at one chapter of scripture or four (or more!), the principle is the same. Well, you can make more than 15 content suggestions, that's ok too! Identify natural divisions! Look for 2 to 4 departments from the content list. The identifier of the beginning and end of the scriptures. Sometimes they jump on you, other times you may have to think a little bit. Make separation suggestions! They summarize the main content groups and the core ideas of each unit. Make a theme of the proposal! Using ten words or less, summarize the contents of the entire scripture. This should not be completely grammatically correct. Nor should be be creatively witty. Define the target! Now think about your audience. You aim at the target learning point. There may be a few training points for your audience from the excerpt. Choose one that says what you've learned and what you want your audience to learn. Define the principle (or two, or more) for each unit! Look around each unit and write a principle that you will find an attitude to division. Here you apply the word of God to life. Write a question on the principle of each unit! What principle would you throw another of this separation? Make the question as an open question. Note: BSF offers a wonderful workshop on performing homiletics once or twice a year. Join us in learning God's word! Words! Last night I was so in writing my blog that I actually typed it all into my dark room because im already ready to sleep haha, but guess what, I accidentally deleted everthing.... T.T, but anyway, I won't lose out on technology.haha Tuck. What motivated me to write this blog? Because... I have been blessed so much with this method of Bible study. When I read my past blog posts, I realize that I have used a lot of links from books that I have read, which is not a bad thing because those are still references from God. However bad it is that these revelations are for the authors and not so much for me. I used to depend on these books. My spiritual life can be dry when I haven't read as much. This year I am officially the BSF group leader, which means that I have my own group and I have to do homiletics and everyday research issues. Imagine that you have to cram it all into your busy week. Sometimes I barely did it... I have to rush through all that bad, because bible study of the common of concepts will not be as effective. However, I never thought I could get my own revelations from God, which I can't wait to share on my blog (just don't have time to write it all down). Okay, hope you're now happy to know what homiletics are. I won't describe the meaning, but the BSF is basically a method of unlocking the word of God that you get the best out of it that speaks specifically about your life at that moment. Before studying this method, I could never read the Bible on my own. I always need a study book or some other book that interprets this passage for me. Let's get to it First, find THE CONTENTS Say you're looking at Genesis Chapter 1. So there are 31 verses. Your task is to group similar verses together, but numerically. In other words, you can combine verses 1 and 10. Your content should not exceed 20 points and it should not have its own interpretation. Basically it will just contain facts. Second, find DIVISION once you get the content. Start grouping them into smaller chunks. We call it Division. Your separation should be 2 to 4 only. And remember that you don't add any new ideas yourself. Basically it's a summary of poems that are concise but contains everything, thirdly, to make your own SUBJECT SENTENCE It's the hardest!!! Haha, because you know why? You have to generalize the passage in 10 words (no more) so when the PPL look at it they know which book and chapter it comes from in the Bible. But do not panic, the practice makes perfect in the fourth, AIM Start your offer with CATL (Cause audience to learn...). Basically, this is the purpose of the passage. What this passage is trying to teach us is that God is trying to tell us what message this passage is trying to transfer to the audience At last, but MoST IMPORTANT ... creates open questions that can cause the audience to make a sth about their lives after reading the passage.avoid yes yes no questions and avoid questions that ask the facts. But more questions start with How and what others as long as it can help with the launch of the action. Yay ... We're done here. Its not hard, is it? Take it easy... I'll give you my example. Please treat this as an example. Because it's not perfect. Urs may be different from mine, because the message God gave u is likely to be different from mine. Im giving an example just so it can help u visualize what I explained above. Homiletics this method of study helps you analyze and understand the passage of the Bible more deeply.
